1983-1984 REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

1983-84 — A Year of Transition.

Although I had the pleasure of serving Lebanon Valley College for only the last four months of the 1983-84 academic year, those four months were filled with an unending series of heartwarming experiences that remind me daily of the past greatness of this institution and of the bright promise of its future.

The opportunity, for example, to meet our distinguished alumni who have made, and are making, such significant and superb contributions in virtually every vocation filled me with a sense of profound pride over the rich history and heritage of the College. And the pleasure of working with our remarkably able and dedicated students, members of the Board of Trustees, faculty, staff and administration generated in me a spirit of genuine optimism over our potential for the years ahead.

I emphasize my optimism because we are moving rapidly into an era in which all institutions of higher learning will be severely challenged, as never before.

The challenge lies in two directions: (1) in the rapidly declining number of traditional 18-22-year-old students (a reduction of almost a third in the next decade in our primary market areas of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and New York); and (2) in our ability to respond effectively and appropriately to the educational needs of older students seeking programs to better equip them for new career demands and for changing patterns of American social life.

The seeds of my optimism are many: past performance and present personnel; the level of financial support received last year from members of the LVC family and its friends, as detailed in this report; and the spirit and substance of a new, six-year LVC Strategic Plan now being formulated to attract and retain a larger number of high-quality, traditional undergraduate students and to increase substantially our educational programs for adult learners and leaders.

The Leadership Imperative

From my first day in office I have indicated that I believed LVC's special contribution to the past and to the future is to be found in her education of Leaders whose Values create a stronger sense of Community.

Our emphasis on preparation for Leadership is particularly important — leadership not only in one's chosen profession but leadership in the church and community and in the scores of "voluntary associations" which set America apart from all other nations.

And I believe that our emphasis upon leadership development will strengthen our appeal both to traditional students and to adult learners! The program we are developing is for all educational and organizational levels: leadership in high schools; in colleges; for middle managers; and for top level executives. The plans for LVC programs in all four areas were well developed by the end of the 1983-84 school year, and we anticipate program implementation at each level by the end of the 1984-85 academic year.

Reaching Out to the Community

Several suggestions included in the first draft of the LVC Strategic Plan concerned the educational needs of personnel from both profit and not-for-profit organizations in our immediate area. As a result, proposals for a variety of two-year associate degree programs in the arts and sciences were forthcoming and will be given serious consideration during the 1984-85 school year. In addition, conversations with at least five universities and colleges have been held relative to the possible hosting of a Master of Business Administration program on the Lebanon Valley College campus.

New Emphasis on Values Orientations at LVC

In an effort to expand and coordinate all student religious activities on campus, a new Council of Religious Organizations has been created. Included in the new structure are PROJECT, Delta Tau Chi, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and Catholic Campus Ministries.

A variety of new projects including a foster grandparents program at retirement homes, planned visitation to the Veteran's Hospital, student deputations to local churches and a continuation of various musical services by the Chapel Singers and HIS indicate a significant resurgence of religious life and related activities on Campus.

Final Audit Shows LVC Fund Balances Grew Substantially in 1983-84

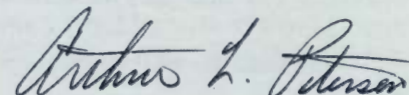

Although the final 1983-84 audit shows the College operating expenses exceeded current fund revenues by approximately $264,000, the overall financial performance for the year shows the College's net fund balances grew by more than $1,000,000 during the past academic year. The summary figures are to be found elsewhere in this report.

As we close out one year and enter upon a new one, permit me to extend my heartfelt appreciation on behalf of the entire LVC family to all those whose generosity makes possible contributions of this very special place to higher education in America.

As our challenges grow in the years ahead so will our commitment to continued excellence and selfless service. And as our financial needs grow I am confident the family and friends of LVC will respond in kind.

I am proud to be associated with this outstanding institution and promise my best efforts to serve it faithfully and well in the years ahead.

Report From the Development Office

The total Lebanon Valley College Annual Giving Fund for fiscal year 1983-84 had an $8,154 increase over the previous record-breaking year. Thirty percent (30%) of our 8,481 alumni contributed a total of $146,924. An outstanding record was achieved by our LVC Parents, with 292 additional gifts and an increase of $14,077 in unrestricted giving. Businesses that contributed to our annual giving grew in number from 134 in 1982-83 to 201, and they increased their overall giving by $30,146. We also added 29 new foundations to our annual giving list, with an increase of $12,694 over last year.

Donors should note that beginning with the 1984-85 Annual Giving Campaign, all monies received — unless specified otherwise — will be used for scholarships and financial aid to deserving LVC students.

Under the new plan, club levels are tied to blocks of time on a student's scholarship. For example, the Professors Club equals one week's tuition for one student or $170; the Deans Club represents a month's tuition for one student, or $680; and the Presidents Club, at $1,360, covers two months of a student's tuition.

Two new societies have been added and these also are tied to scholarship aid. Donors of a full year's tuition ($5,850) become members of the Founders Society. A gift of $11,700, equivalent to a year's tuition for two students, qualifies one for membership in the Trustees Associates.

Business and Industry

The number of companies contributing to Lebanon Valley College continues to increase each year. Companies providing direct support are listed below. A major portion of the support the College receives from businesses and corporate foundations indirectly comes through the Foundation for Independent Colleges, Inc. of Pennsylvania. The Foundation for Independent Colleges, on behalf of all the independent colleges in Pennsylvania, conducts a unified annual appeal among business and industry in the Commonwealth. The list below does not include corporations that supported Lebanon Valley College through the Foundation for Independent Colleges. A complete listing of contributing corporations is recorded in the 1984 Annual Report and Corporate Honor Roll of the Foundation for Independent Colleges, Inc. of Pennsylvania.

Time and Talent

Achievement of the mission of Lebanon Valley College would not be possible without the untiring support of loyal alumni and friends who volunteer time in addition to dollars.

Alumni Ambassadors are graduates who talk with high school seniors who have expressed interest in Lebanon Valley College. Alumni Advocates are secondary school teachers who represent the College in the classroom.

The Alumni Association is governed by an executive committee of graduates chosen to represent a total of more than 8,500 living alumni. Lebanon Valley College is grateful for the constant support of the individuals listed below.
